On this page:

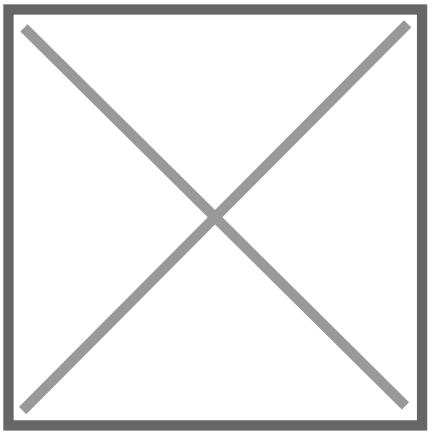

- Our research
- Resources for participants, families and carers
- How participants, families and carers can get involved
- Support for researchers

Our research

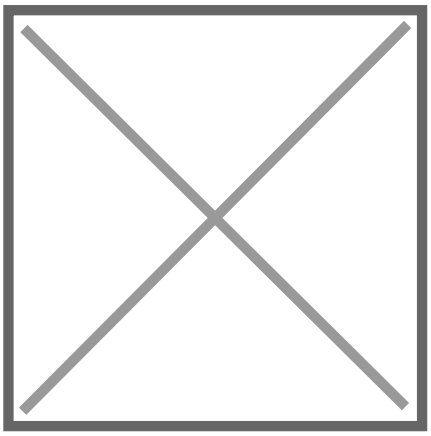

You can read about our areas of research below:

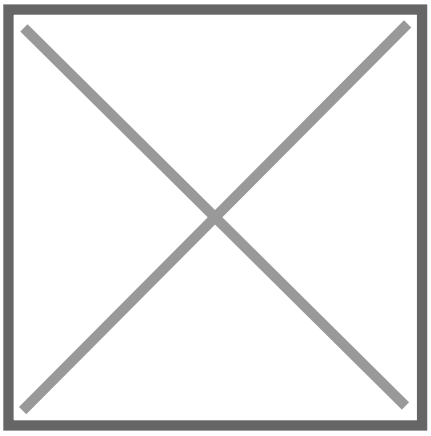

Decision-making for access and planning

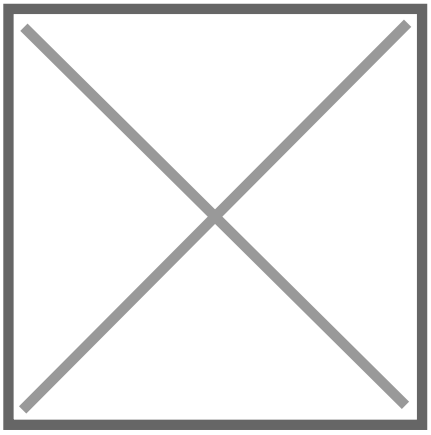

Early interventions and high volume cohorts

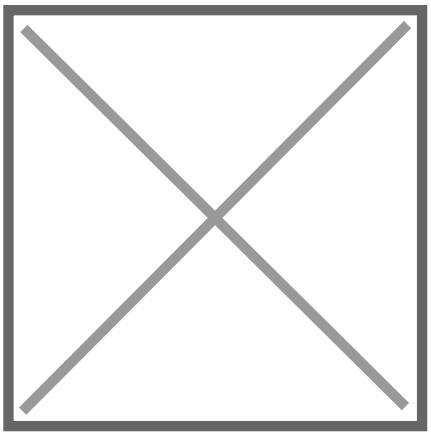

Home and living supports

Market stewardship and employment

Evidence that helps us improve the NDIS

Improving outcomes for participants

Resources for participants, families and carers

We also produce guides to help participants and their families :

- get the information they need to get the most out of their plans
- receive best practice supports and services that help them pursue their goals
- access improved and to innovative supports.

You can read more about our approach to research translation.

How participants, families and carers can get involved

We sometimes contact participants and providers directly to invite them to be involved in our research. We will always share information about these projects so that you can check that you are not being scammed.

You can also join Participant First to be notified of opportunities to be involved.

Support for researchers

The NDIA is committed to supporting researchers and developing partnerships with academic institutions and research bodies to drive and shape the disability research agenda.

Find out more about how we support researchers .