The outcomes framework surveys measure the outcomes of participants and their families and carers who are part of the NDIS.

The surveys ask participants about how their lives are changing in areas like daily living, choice and control, health and wellbeing, relationships, community participation, work and learning. Families and carers are also asked about their experiences while caring for a person in the scheme.

The responses of participants and their families and carers are helping to understand how the Scheme is making a difference while pointing to areas where improvements may be needed.

The results of the outcomes surveys include analysis shared through the latest outcomes reports, dashboards and data downloads for service districts and to LGA level.
